

Anna-Maria: Green Travel Experience

Most importantly, I choose green travel by train because to be honest I hate flying. I did an internship in Frankfurt and I could have taken a plane from Amsterdam to Frankfurt but why? To wait for 2 hours with checked-in luggage and then risk it being lost... So I decided to travel by train. I took NS trains to Venlo, from there to the closest big city, in this case it was Dusseldorf and then ICE fast train to Frankfurt. My experience was great, it was easy, no rush since there are trains coming and going all the time. And the German ICE trains are great for travelling long distances.

PS: If you choose a train, you also get to see a bit more from the country!

I am attaching a few photos from my travel journey, the fries we got in Dusseldorf on the way to Frankfurt + one photo travelling to work with a nice grey sky ☺
